

PRESS RELEASE

Scottoiler Adventure Tourer Mick Hoey

Mick Hoey is a 32 year old from Denmark with Itchy feet and a big hunger for travelling around the world on his motorcycle. He left Denmark and a career as an Aircraft Technician in 2009 to hit the road on his Sport Bike, a 1996 Honda VFR 750.

He went through Europe and travelled some of the most remote areas of Africa. Mick attached a Scottoiler in Spain and has since done an amazing 63 000 km on the same chain through sand, mud, salt and every other kind of environment. Not to mention the different weather conditions he has encountered. Mick's Bike has been through some of the dustiest areas of West Africa, including a severe sandstorm in the Western Sahara desert and in Mauritania. "The Scottoiler got me and my bike through without any problems. I see other people travelling changing sprockets and chains or they're always concerned about their chain" said Mick "With a Scottoiler I need minimum attention on the chain and sprockets".

Mick is just starting his South American Adventures and keeps a blog about his travels explained in text, photos and videos. Right now he is on the West Coast of Chile. "My journey has no limits; I will continue my solo travel around the globe as long as I can" said Mick "I enjoy riding longer without the hassle of maintenance and the Scottoiler helps me with that". Mick is currently in Buenos Aires, Argentina. He then plans to continue onto Azul.
